SENIOR SUPERIORITY

When your senior year comes rolling around,
You feel as though you've got the ground,
While freshmen are pouring in by the pound,
With impairments by number you have found.

Then you stop yourself and start to think back,
At the time when superiority you did lack,
So on the freshmen's ignorance you can't crack,
Because ignorance is the start of a superiority nack!

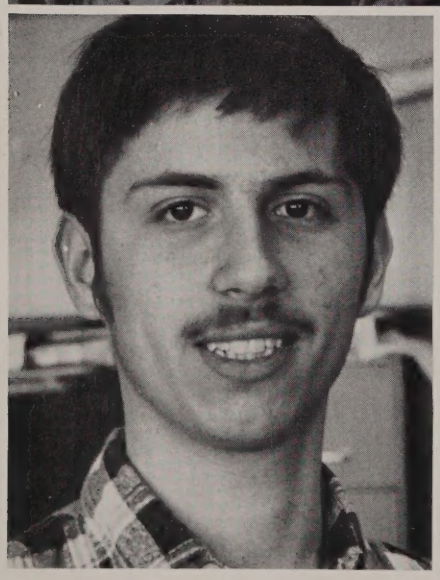
CLASS HISTORY



We can still remember that first day. It was a dark, cloudy morning, as we stood, September 5, 1979, on the Terrace waiting to be admitted to Brighton High School, standing around nervously by ourselves or in small groups chatting quietly. Once inside we were given a copy of the student handbook and received a copy of our class schedules. The rest of the day was spent going to our various classes and familiarizing ouselves with the school.

In the weeks following that first day we grew accustomed to Brighton High and by October we were part of the school.

Across the country there was a sigh of relief as the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania was slowly being forgotten. Israel and Egypt signed a Peace Treaty, settling the problem of the Sinai Peninsula. Then at the beginning of November an event occurred which would rock the country and the world. Young Iranian militants, followers of the Ayallotah Khomeini, seized the U.S. Embassy in Iran, vowing to hold our people hostage until their Shah was returned for trial in Iran.

As we entered our Sophmore year in September 1980 things began to change at Brighton High. A clustering system was developed for the new freshman class and Housemasters would direct the activities within each grade. Under the new grading system, we the class of '83 would be the last class to graduate with only 90 points.

That fall, the school bus drivers went on strike from October 9, to November 2, and many students had to find new ways to get to school. That same November, Ronald Reagan was elected to the presidency, promising a quick end to the Hostage problem in Iran. A few weeks later, an event that was to hit closer to home for many was the unfortunate murder of ex-Beatle John Lennon in New York City.

1980 also brought changes in business education at Brighton High, and we had two word processors installed that year. Although it was not a Championship year for Brighton Sports teams, again our year-old Math team did well placing 7th in a league of 40.

On January 20, 1981, Ronald Reagan was sworn in as president and the Hostages were finally home from Iran after more than a year in captivity. It was truly a day to remember.

Closer to home we were just beginning to feel the effects of Proposition 2½, a new law that would touch evey resident of Massachustts.

By mid-April many students had heard the rumors of impending closing of several Boston schools and of the anticipated layoffs of hundreds of teachers and massive cutbacks in school supplies. Many chose to disregard the rumors, but they were the forerunners of Hard Times to come. On the brighter side, the Space Shuttle Columbia was launched, marking a milestone in space flight.

By our third year at Brighton, the first day held no surprises – we would meet our old friends in our new classes. We were to find many of our teachers from the previous years gone and the number of students in class greatly increased. Our school newspaper, the "Castle News," also fell victim to the cutbacks cause by 2½.

The beginning of our Junior year also brought awareness that our time at Brighton High was running out. Many of us who enrolled in College prep courses were busy pouring over the college catalogues planning our further education. Others who had decided to pursue careers in the business sector chose their courses at Brighton carefully, to prepare themselves for the work world.

September of '82 brought us again to the portals of Brighton High for our Senior Year. The year that had seemed so far away not so very long ago – again, many familiar faces were missing among the teachers and our Headmaster, Mr. Tracy, had retired. Our new Headmaster, Mrs. Johnson, brought with her a new school motto: "We're on the move," and move we did.

Those of us planning to go to college were soon caught up in the rush of S.A.T. and achievement tests, college applications and Financial Aid Forms. Our senior year also saw the arrival of 30 computer terminals marking a new and startling way students will be taught in Boston in the years to come.

By the time you read this page our class night and Prom will be just memories and graduation day will be not far away and the 1983 Gothic will be but another chapter in the History of Brighton High School. Years from now we will sit back and look through our copy and remember our High School years, the trials and tribulations we went through. We will feel that our years at Brighton High were truly some of our best.

HEADMASTERS

FRANCIS O. TRACY, HEADMASTER EMERITUS

Education requires a strong effort and a real sacrifice. Therefore, you should take pride in your achievement. As I have stressed in previous graduations and award exercises, educational development is a continual process. The faculty has instilled in you a desire to seek out and discover, to study and create. Hence, I urge every graduate to continue in the pursuits of further education, either vocational or academic.

I wish to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to all those involved with the daily operations of Brighton High School for their help and cooperation.

Francis O. Tracy
Emeritus

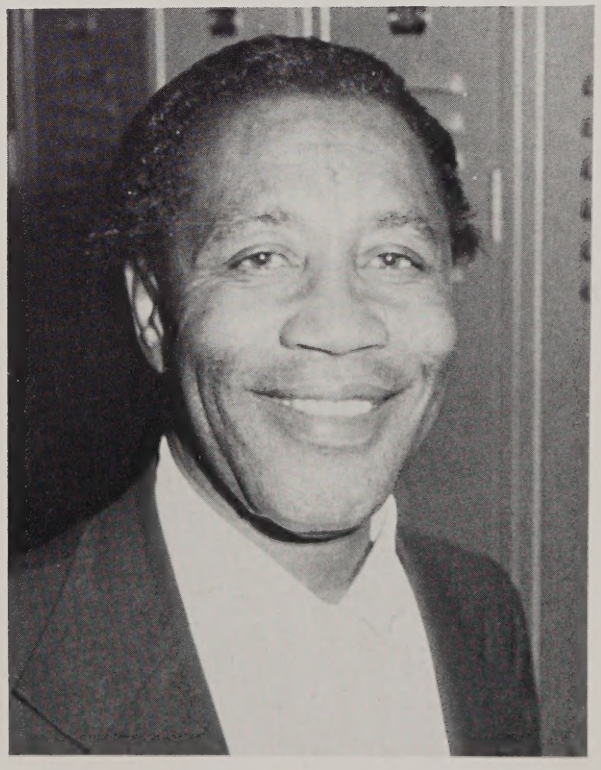
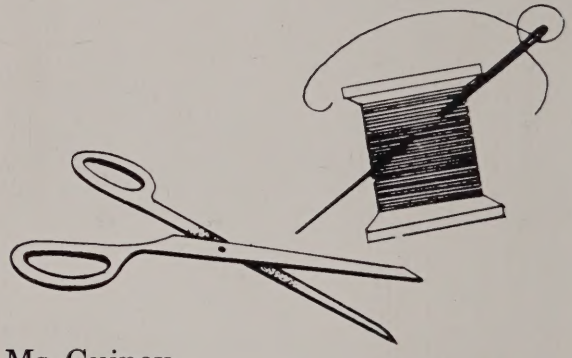
HISTORY

History is a major discipline in the study of man's past with protection for man's present and future. An important lesson of history is "He who forgets the past is condemned to repeat it."

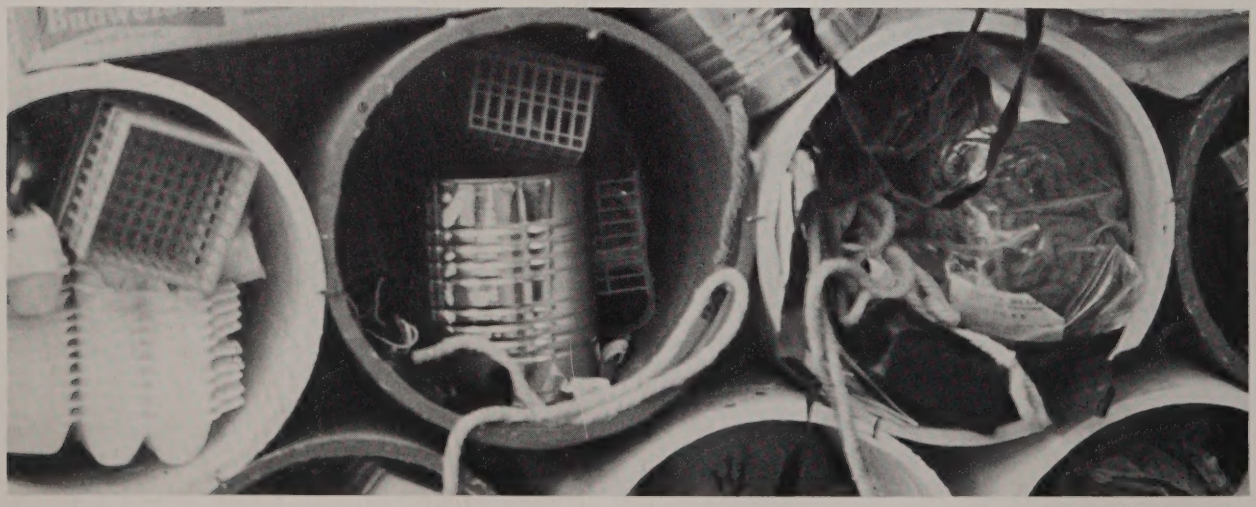
It is History more than any other discipline that shapes the life of man and his society.





Ms. Guiney

HOME ECONOMICS



Physical Education is an important part of the total education program. Because of the unique contribution that physical education makes to the development of health, physical fitness and skills in physical activities it is a significant phase in the total school program.

Never before in the history of man has there been such a great need for the individual to participate in some form of physical education program.

The pace of the modern society and the,complexity of its nature are such that a strain is placed on students in the psychological sense; yet, in the technological sense, the need for physical exertion has become minimized. Logically the people need to be physically fit even though they are not required to make any great physical exertion in their work. The problem of leisure time also must be considered. There must be training provided to insure the proper use of leisure time.

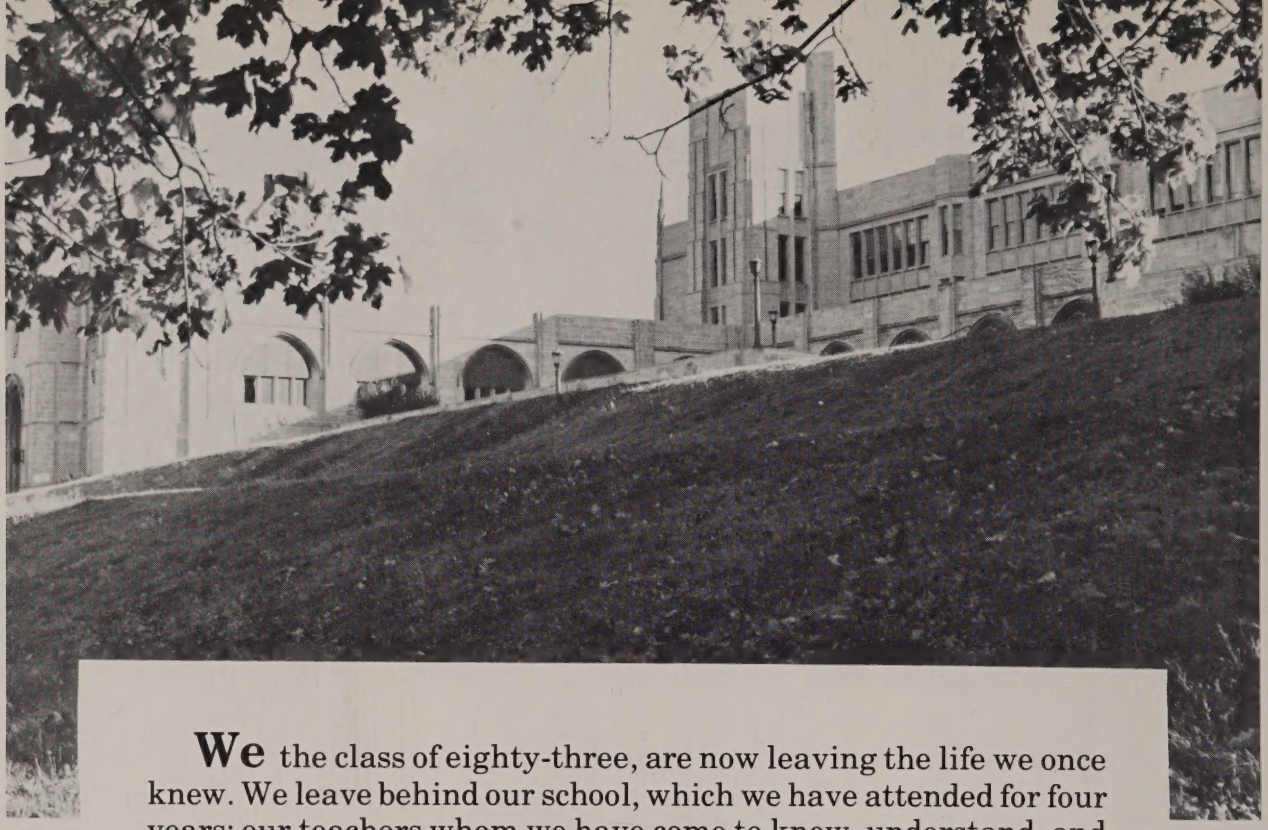
SENIORS '83

WE'RE ON THE MOVE...



We the class of eighty-three, are now leaving the life we once knew. We leave behind our school, which we have attended for four years; our teachers whom we have come to know, understand, and care for; and friends, who have shared with us beautiful and sad memories. During our high school years we have been offered the opportunity to obtain the tools which will equip us through life. We have gathered these tools not only from the class room, but also from the corridors, from teachers and from friends. As graduation draws near, our joyous memories are overshadowed by sadness. As we welcome our day of departure we also regret leaving behind our favorite teachers, good friends, and a small part of ourselves.

CLASS PROPHECY

DATELINE: JUNE 6, 2008

Hey, what's up? I didn't think I'd run into you out here in the city of the Angels, but you never know who you'll run into on a car, bus, or plane. Speaking of planes and running into people, guess who I saw while flying on Eastern Airlines last week? Jean Allen, um hmm, she was the head stewardess on the flight, yeah! Her co-worker was, um, um, Gladys, yeah, Gladys Pizarro. Jean told me about all of the old buddies who fly back and forth between here and the Big Apple. Um hmm, just last week there was a big secretarial convention out here. She flew (airplane humor ha, ha, ha) into Desi and Becky on one of her flights. Yeah, they're secretaries of Boa, yeah Boa Carroll. He owns a chain of Mickey D's. Ha, ha, I laughed too, but he's doing rather well, very well in fact. London and Lorraine opened a few restaurants in New York, and they're on the road to success. Their accountant is Baby Girl, yeah Odessa Walton, and their lawyer is Ceci. Um hmm, she's big time now, but when you ask her a question she still says, "I don't know!" Ava Mathias, whose law firm has lawyers such as Ceci, has worked out a contract for Rosie. Rose Patterson, yeah. Celluch and Alicia are backing up her boutiques financially. Yes, the both of them are doing very well. The week before last there was a Computer Programming convention in D.C., and Jean said she saw Lisa Lee, Ethel Godwin, Smile, Chic, Bell, yeah Lisa Bell, and Cookie. All of them were flying the United Way on Eastern Airlines. On Jean's flight from D.C. to L.A., she ran into the famed director/producer, Max. You remember Max – Dennis Benway, yeah him. He's in the middle of producing and directing a movie starring Gig, yeah Villavicencio, and Brooke Shields. Queen Bee is doing the make-up for the movie. She does make-up for all the big names in the entertainment world: Lenora Thomas and Pop-a-long Ginyard. Speaking of Pop-a-long, he's doing the sound track for Max's movie. Skins and Bob, who are practicing medicine and working in the same hospital as Rodie, Sugar, and Cookie, have discovered that the lack of passion can cause cancer. Out of that group mentioned, two of them definitely won't get it. Oh! John Harrington has been given the chance to show his talents in architectural engineering. Yep, he's going to build Chris' new Playboy Club. Kito and Kelly are going to manage it. Last year Harrington sponsored an Engineering convention. Chong Sein Chen, Leong Ent Chen, Hank and Manuel showed up for it. Jan is opening a playboy club for us girls. Ha ha! Big fun, um hmm. Yeah, I know! Teddy, Money Mike, and Bob are all pro-basketball players. Yeah, Nick, Jessie, and Norman have all represented the U.S. in Olympics since graduation, and they all have plenty of silver and gold medals from a variety of athletic events. Yes, that's very good. Ernesto, Ivan, Tuan, Luan and Tai are all pro-soccer players. Yeah! It seems we had a host of talented people in our class. Oh, Bill, Bill O'Sullivan, um hmm, I saw him last week. Yep, on his motorcycle; he had ridden all the way across country on that motor bike. Tina is an artist, and she sometimes even teaches art courses at B.H.S. Guess what! Angela, is a professional photographer. Um hmm, big time! All of the big fashion models work with her. Oh Jeff, he teaches military History at an academy in Boston. Um hum, he still loves history. Yea! I remember Yen, Yen Hau. Jean says that Yen is now the head of Project Welcome. Um hmm, everyone seems to have done well. Yes, I am a doctor, um hmm, yeah, my clinic is on the outskirts of L.A. Well, nice seeing you! Take care. Bye!
